KDHS Students Learn CPR

Tuesday, 28 May 2013 08:28  Valerie Isaac

Students across northeastern Ontario are receiving training in saving lives. Students at KDHS received a donation from Trans Canada of a pair of AED mannequins and a pair of defibrillator training units. Dan Stencil, Aboriginal and Community Relations Liaison at TransCanada says it's important to help students in these endeavours. Kapuskasing mayor, Alan Spacek also says it's a great opportunity for young people in the community to learn these life-saving skills.

The Advanced Coronary Treatment Foundation and partners like Trans Canada train Grade 9 students throughout the north each year.
